

GENERAL INFORMATION

HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

THE University of Malta traces its origins to the founding of the Collegium Melitense which was set up through direct papal intervention on the 12th November 1592. This college was run by the Jesuits on the lines of their other colleges established elsewhere and known as 'Collegia Externorum', catering for non-Jesuit students. By a papal Bull of Pope Pius IV, dated 29th August 1561, confirmed later by a further Bull of Pope Gregory XIII, dated 9th May 1578, the Jesuits were empowered to confer the degrees of Magister Philosophiae and Doctor Divinitatis. However, the foundation deed specified that besides Philosophy and Theology, other subjects such as Grammar and the Humanities should also be taught.

Following the abatement of the plague of 1675, Grand Master Nicolò Cottoner appointed Fra Dr. Giuseppe Zammit as 'lettore' in Anatomy and Surgery at the Sacra Infermeria on the 19th October 1676. This attempt at formalizing medical teaching at the Order's hospital is considered by many as the beginning of our medical school. Zammit went on to establish the first medical library on the island as well as a medicinal herb garden in one of the ditches of Fort Saint Elmo.

After the expulsion of the Jesuit Order from Malta in 1768, Grand Master Pinto appropriated all the revenue accruing from its property on the island with the aim of establishing a 'Pubblica Università di Studi Generali'. The decree constituting the University was signed by Pinto on the 22nd November 1769, having been authorized to do so by the papal Brief, 'Sedula Romani Pontifici', received on the 20th October 1769. On the 25th May 1771, a Collegio Medico was set up as one of the faculties making up the University. At the time of the foundation of the University, the 'Principe dell'Accademia dei Medici' was the surgeon Michelangelo Grima who also held the combined chair of Anatomy and Surgery at the Medical School, whilst the Professor of Medicine was Giorgio Locano.

The first Rector of the University was Fr. Roberto Costaguti of the Servites' Order who had in previous years established a reputation as a preacher. A number of other foreign professors were brought over to help establish the University and these were installed in June 1771. They all lived together in the former Jesuit College. It appears that the Medical Faculty was the only one staffed solely by local teachers, a tradition which has been maintained throughout the centuries.

Soon after Pinto died his successor, Ximenes, reduced the number of chairs and expelled all expatriate staff as an economic measure. During the brief French interregnum formal University teaching came to an end as Napoleon abolished the University five days after landing in Malta on the 18th June 1798. Fortunately, a few weeks after the French were forced to leave, Sir Alexander Ball re-instituted the University and appointed as rector Canon F.X. Caruana on the 28th October 1800 in recognition of his services during the uprising against the French. The first rector appointed by the Governor Sir Thomas Maitland, at the beginning of British sovereignty, was the Dominican Fr. Gerolomo Inglott, the Professor of Philosophy. During the British period the University underwent a series of changes in its statutes and regulations bringing it into line with universities in the United Kingdom. The present coat of arms and the motto 'Ut Fructificemus Deo' were proposed on 1st March 1923 by the rector, Professor Sir Themistocles Zammit. Between 1937 and 1974, (when Malta became a Republic) the University petitioned for and obtained regularly the right to the use of the word "Royal" in its title.

Following the Second World War, the Library and support structures were strengthened. The Evans Laboratories were opened in 1959 to house the Faculty of Science near the old hospital of the Knights in Valletta and a new Medical School building near St Luke's Hospital in Guardamangia was opened in 1968. At the same time, the new campus at Msida was inaugurated. In 2007, the Medical School and the Institute of Health Care moved to the new Mater Dei Hospital complex at Tal-Qroqq.

The Faculty of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering (now, the Faculty of Engineering) and the Faculty of Education became part of the University when the former Polytechnic (known also as the Malta College of Arts, Science and Technology) was incorporated with it.

The present shape of the University was established by the 1988 Education Act. There are at present about 10,000 students, including some 750 foreign/exchange students, following full-time or part-time degree and diploma courses, many of them run on the modular or credit system. The degree courses are designed to produce highly qualified professionals, with experience of research, who will play key roles in industry, commerce and public affairs in general. The University today has eleven faculties and a number of interdisciplinary centres and institutes.

Associated with the University is the Mediterranean Academy of Diplomatic Studies while the campus is also home to the IMO International Maritime Law Institute (IMLI) as well as to the International Ocean Institute, famous for its 'Pacem in Maribus' convocations. The University of the Third Age was inaugurated in 1993 and membership has increased steadily. There are a number of fields which the University has identified as priority areas. A Faculty of Information & Communication Technology has been established so as to strengthen the university's commitment in this area whilst the Faculty of Engineering has restructured so as to bring it into line with recent developments in the field. Enhanced relations with industry continue to be a priority as does the University's contribution to the improvement of primary and secondary education and the forging of inter-university links to stimulate international educational exchange.

The University of Malta is a member of the European Universities Association, the European Access Network, the Association of Commonwealth Universities, the Utrecht Network, the Santander Network, the Compostela Group and the International Student Exchange Programme (ISEP). Over the years, the University has participated in a number of EU Programmes and has won several projects under the various Framework programmes in collaboration with a number of partner universities. University of Malta staff and students participate in programmes such as Erasmus, Leonardo and Comenius.

THE UNIVERSITY'S COAT-OF-ARMS

AT the sitting of the General Council of the 20th October 1922, it was decided to endow the University of Malta with a Coat-of-Arms. A sketch submitted by Sir Themistocles Zammit, then Rector of the University, was later approved by the General Council and was described on the 10th September 1923 by the Royal College of Heralds as follows:

“Per pale Argent and Gules an Open Book proper clasped and bound on a Chief Quarterly of the second and first in the first and fourth quarters a Cross, in the second and third five Crescents in saltire all counterchanged”.

The Motto “Ut Fructificemus Deo” was also proposed by Sir Themistocles Zammit, and is taken from St. Paul.
